PLUG

Dennis Agosto, 57 Meadow Road, Edison, NJ 08817 has re-activated his sports gamezine, TOP OF THE STRETCH. Currently running is a large multi-player variant of APBA's American Saddle Racing game, and several very good positions for stable owners are still open. Denis provides all the information needed to play. The game is easy to grasp, plays smoothly, and is a lot of fun. One $5 fee covers both the game fee and sub for the duration of the game.

As a special inducement to LIB subscribers, you may write to Russ VieBrooks, 551 Puthoff, Hamilton, OH 45013 and he will send you copies of each horse's statistical card in their stable with an explanation of its use, if needed.

Rod Walker, c/o 1273 Crest Dr., Encinitas, CA 92024 is offering free sample copies of DIPLOMACY WORLD to LIB subscribers. Please include a first class stamp with your request.

Letters

Jim,

Congratulations on using the Atari for peaceful purposes. Who knows? Perhaps someday it may be able to equal or surpass the Apple II.

-- Robert Cheak

((I looked long and hard at the Apple before I bought the Atari. I couldn't see how it was any better. For half the money, I couldn't pass up the Atari.))

I really enjoy your zine -- it's the best zine I'm in (although the printing could use improvement). I especially like the short deadlines -- the games go so much more quickly. Keep up the good work.

-- Kevin Kozlowski

O. Thanks for the encouragement. I need it. I have a fragile ego, I guess. The printing last time was worse than usual. The mimeo is in the garage, and the temperature was in the low 200's. Mimeo ink won't flow at that temperature, so I had the devil of a time getting ink on the pages. I plan on a surprise improvement of the printing soon. Watch this space!

NEW DIPLOMACY GAME BEGINS A-1982

You now have until the deadline for issue #169 to get your Spring, 1901 moves in. The extra-long deadline is to enable you to develop diplomacy before the game starts. I don't believe any of you have yet submitted the $3 game fee, so send it in. I also want a Phantom for this game. Anyone out there want to Phantom this game?

Moscow: Huh?

Reports are piling in from London concerning yesterday's coup, in which the monarchy was bloodlessly overthrown. Reliable reports say London's Antpeople rallied at Buckingham Palace in a peaceful protest which turned into a riot havoc. Thousands of marching Antpeople shouted slogans including "Antheus for 'em people", "Antpeople Unite!",
"Defy, Defy, London the Old Hat!"

Units were seen thrown and the crowd stormed the palace. Hours later, after Parliament had been permanently dissolved, the New Republic of Antland was proclaimed. A national holiday has been scheduled for next Spring, and Antpeople have already begun to celebrate.

The leader of the re-govt has shot himself off, and his identity is unknown, but he has released these communiques & using his foreign belle.

Antland-England: Wise-was diplomacy shir-ers are definitely not appreciated in any game anywhere. I think all of us would do better if you stop your pen in paper for awhile. Really, Antpeople are anonymous, was that called for?

Antland-Italy: Antpeople wisass moves or wise-ass moves you are wise ass moves or wise ass moves up and me, shall be dealt with accordingly
I think for now, I feel the same way.

Antland-Russia: "Tar, wa ch it" means nothing what's over to me. I will appreciate it if you will clarify your statement. It could mean "Tar, watch it! The world is gazing up on you."
Or "Tar, watch it, you're stepping too far!" Or,
"Tar, watch it, your fly is down", or...

Antland-France: Sorry, Charlie.

Antland World: As you all know, Lance Mc Millan, the player who requested this be an "Odd" game, is not in this game. Therefore,
I am asking for a vote to change this to a normal game. My decision is all right with me, but I hate prolonged suspense.
(I'll accept the unanimous affirmative vote on this question to change the game. -- JB)

JUNTA: Coup Phases 4 & 5

The Air Force launches its 3d strike against the Presidential Guards in the Cathedral. The 3d Bde, entering the Cathedral just as the bombs begin to fall, witnessed the Guards kneeling in prayer. This seems to have saved their lives, as the force of the bombs shot over their heads.

The Navy bombarded the Railway Station, destroying the Tank company and an infantry regiment of the 1st Bde. The rumor around town has it the Navy was trying to prevent the movement of the weekly express to Santiago. Some deserters had absconded with the month's ration of rum.

The 5th Coup Phase finds the 3d Bde in the Radio Station.

The 3d Brigade, rushing to the defense of our beloved El Presidente, took time off to dash into the Cathedral, tanks and all, for a brief prayer.
General Olsini offered thanks for the abyssal failure of the plots of the heinous traitors, and appealed for a larger share of the next budget.

2000 peasants entered the RR station today chanting "Viva El Presidente". Shortly thereafter, a party started with the 1st Brigade, and there was much laughter and merriment.

AN OPEN LETTER TO JIM BUMPAS:

Playing AB is getting to be less and less fun, and more frustrating. No Jim, you're not becoming more sensitive (at least that I can tell). My letters have indeed contained more complaints lately. Things have been building up over the past 4-5 months culminating in the last couple of letters I sent to you.

Correct me if I'm wrong, but I don't recall my having blamed you for causing me to lose a scenario (though I'd love to have a scapegoat for DRAB). I may have blamed you in a fit of rage but I don't recall it. What bothers me the most is your attitude, which in effect says, "it doesn't matter if I make mistakes, you're good enough to win the scenario anyway." Your comments on my moves such as "give some panic" when my units scatter over the map because you forgot to plot a couple of turns of their movement is also irksome.

I do indeed remember the old AB3 panic rule. Compared to the GM "panic" it has its pluses and minuses. The main plus was when a unit panic moved you knew it right away from your turn sheet, rather than 2/3 or 4 turns later when you moved or fired the unit. The main problem with it was we had not only that panic rule but also the GM "panic". The all or nothing panic sounds interesting. It might bear some discussion.

On the subject of real life units, if I wanted real life I'd either go back in the Marines or move to New York City. I play games for the competition and the enjoyment, not because I want to recreate real life combat.

I'd like to respond to what I feel was an unfair remark about Frediani. I spend quite a bit of time on the phone with Jim discussing the game. It's inevitable that I mention the latest "panic" to descend on my units. We also spend quite a bit of time bringing each other up to date on the latest rules "interpretations" to rear their heads. As a result of these talks, it is not uncommon for me to ask Jim to mention various things to you if he happens to talk to you. Therefore, I must take a good portion of blame when he brings my complaints to your attention.

On the subject of change, I'm not totally opposed to it. The unit lists (except for very minor changes) are the best we've had in a long time. I do however object to such a drastic change in the rules and maps in what is in effect the middle of a game. Change when change is cried out for is fine. Change just for the sake of change is not. Especially when for the past 3 years or so all the players have based strategies on the old rules. More so when the majority of players in the game are opposed to the changes. If you want to use the ARAB rules then start another game based on them. I certainly hope you're not serious about using ARAB rules for those who want too, while keeping the old rules for those who don't want ARAB. As for your statement that ARAB rules don't change the tactical rules at all, a quick glance at ARAB rules 5 1, 5, 11, 5 12, 5 21, 5, 22, 7, 43, 7 62, 7 7 and all the Optional Rules 10, 0 seem to change the tactical rules very much.

In conclusion, it seems to me that over the past 4-6 months, the incidence of GM "panic" has taken a dramatic increase. Maybe it's just that I'm becoming more sensitive. In my talks with other players, the feeling that possibly you're trying to do too much and as a result are making more errors. I honestly don't know what the answer is. I do know there is no way on earth I could moderate as many games as you do and put up with as much abuse as I (and I'm sure other players) give you. My hat is off to you.

-- J. I. Cottle

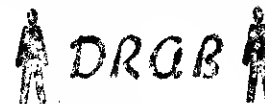

AB42:

Norge. That's the way you make a deviation, J., you don't screw around making any gains. Just get enough stuff off the beach to run up your panic and get yourself AV'd. You've made it look so easy, even the Russians are trying it. Looks like you've got it down pat. You can try it out in France next year. Don't forget to give Spain the benefit of your experiences, wouldn't want to leave Russ behind, would you?

Ankara (SPI): Hey! Where's your two tanks a turn?

DRAB:

The Germania militia, aided by Stygian Waste regulars, has repulsed the Carthaginian tyrants. They are now searching for a lone infantry section which survives. Over 30 have been destroyed. It is rumored that another major power has been supplying troops to Germania, making this possible.

The brilliant beetle-strengthened forces of Turkey hold off Italians while knocking on Russia's back door. Russia, I'm content. NOW let's be friends Italy, if you don't get out of the AEG by Spring, it's war.

France, do you think we ought to?

Rome to Paris: The people of Italy have earnestly sought to support and appease the noble French forces as they have battled the ruthless invasion by the homeless (and homely) Austrian and German. It never ceases to amaze us that the French prefer to allow the Germans to remain in Burgundy rather than allow us to help him liberate Marseille!

Rome to Moscow: The cruel invasion against you will eventually fail. The gallant Russian forces will triumph against these aggressors! Even now their home centers waver as they seek advantage over you!

Russia to England: Sorry I only stab when one of my new allies ... than the one I stab!

France to Austria (Marseille) Oie you the-pick'in nail-biten, finger-lick'in, ragtime newspaper evangelist! Preach in you own country where bicycle-seat-smelling is acceptable. In France, we have a little class--we only crawl across broken glass, through burning sand just to bite the bathtub bubbles of fair matrons.

France - England: Why are you still in the English Channel? The gas pedal is the one furthest to the right! I say be dumb (stupid if you may) but allies don't leave ballistic-missile type battleships in friendly waters. Unless they plan a future coup.

France-Germany: May the lovely bird of paradise fly up your nose. I hope the fleas of thousands of camels light under your armpits producing happy families for many generations! Begone you perpetrator of ill-will!

Edinburgh: Due to the British navy's excursion into Norway, a convoy to STP is impossible, and thus the planned foreign mission to STP has been postponed. The Royal British Army was disappointed, and is eagerly awaiting departure.

Marseilly: Hey, Kevin, mr boy! How's Saint Mary's College? did you burn it down yet, you long legged young'in, ya?

Austrian Booby: Now that I have one ally, I have six. Now, I have to try to get rid of some allies so I have someone to fight -- will all my unit(s)?
